At the bottom of each page is a color bar that shows the specific colors available for the collection shown on the page. Please note that all models may not come in all colors. By matching the color codes next to a specific frame with the corresponding code in the color bar at the bottom of the page, you see the available colors of a particular model. Besides, each color bar illustrates how the colors of the front, back and temples are combined.

The colors are printed as lifelike as possible but the following guide will help you identify their true intensity.

Each color code consists of four numerical digits:

- > The first two digits indicate the color of the frame.
(See opposite page)
- > The third digit indicates the intensity of the color:
1 = light, 2 = medium, 3 = dark, 4 = gradient
- > The fourth digit indicates the surface finish:
1 = matte, 2 = shiny, 3 = antique,
4 = demi, 5 = transparent 6 = brushed

Ex.: 3521 = Color: violet Intensity: medium Finish: matte

MODEL 1240-1241

The design

This collection started with just a simple line drawn on a piece of paper. Then another. Then another yet again. The natural way the hand moves, and the energy of the lines tells a story of the intuitive and unconscious inspiration that comes to us at the most unexpected moments.

The color combinations of the acetate temples are exclusive for ProDesign. ProDesign are doing their own color combinations instead of working with pre-manufactured acetate sheets.

The classic monotone of the fronts makes them quite unisex to look at but the way we have made the powerful color combinations on the temples, takes the frames in more feminine direction

MODEL 1247-1250

The design

This is the simplest way of creating a flexible hinge! Just by adding the two parallel cuts in the temple material right where the hinge is placed, you get a flexible hinge. The design is kept clean, without any unnecessary details and in just a single color – but the hinge detail makes all the difference!

The lightness and simplicity of the frames is emphasized by the nylon rim.

MODEL 1379-1387

The design

From the pattern and colors of the frames to the soft rubber surface – this collection has a very sporty, high performance feel, but without making too much "noise". It is a design that is not only beautiful to look at, but feels great to touch and to wear.

The lines of the temple patterns create a solid, unbroken line all the way to the front of the frame. The technique to obtain this effect is unique to ProDesign. The simple, sharp design of this collection, gives it a very classic look, yet still modern due to the larger dimensions of the fronts.

The design

Colorful frames from just one material. The milling away of the acetate material creates the 5 vertical stripes that are so characteristic of this collection. The colors are repeated in the end tip to create extra attention to the stripes.

That extra little detail – created simply by milling away the layers of the acetate material.

4TH DIMENSION

Metal / Titanium / Acetate / Aluminium

Fashion-forward frames with a smart and stylish finish. The urban look with retro inspiration commands trendy colors and shapes to obtain a truly individual style. A different side to 4th Dimension reveals a sporty vibrant look with cool rubber details.

The design

Innovative use of material gives this collection it's sporty, intelligent edge. The masculine shapes and the unique detailing add a technology orientated feel. For the adventurous and fearless male, this combination of silicone rubber temples and pure titanium fronts, emphasizes an urban, sporty look that will stand out from any crowd.

The textural details of the silicone rubber temples are wrapped seamlessly around the front, and the crosshatch pattern brings out the funky colors in a perfect image of a masculine watch strap, that originally inspired this cutting edge series.

MODEL 4367-4370

The design

The designer wanted to create a frame that looked like it was made from several layers of metal. We obtained this look by pressing the metal into steps and giving them two different metallic colors. The metal colors are handpainted, which is a difficult task to control. The fresh, lighter colors are combined with more conservative shades to match the autumn and winter fashion.

The titanium frames are light and comfortable, which meets the increasing demand from the market for light weight frames in metal materials.

The design

The titanium fronts give the frames a very light and classic look. But wait! What is happening on the acetate temples? An explosion of color and pattern transforms these frames into something really special!

The playfulness of the colors combined with different patterns in an almost random way, really sets this collection apart from anything we've seen in the mixed materials section before!

The design

With light transparent two-toned color combinations the frames are powerful yet not dramatic. Instead of concealing the hinges they have been carefully incorporated into the front so they appear as a discrete jewel on a very expressive frame. In the little "window" on the side of the temple a piece of the acetate has been cut out and flipped over create a delicate color effect. This is plastic fantastic!

The design

Sometimes inspiration comes from the world around us and sometimes from the material itself.

This 4th Dimension collection is all about the beautiful raw material! Each frame is a great piece of craftsmanship – the raw block of acetate is handmade and each temple is cut immaculately to obtain the beautiful, energetic pattern.

The temple color vary from the very energetic and powerful to the high-class feminine and this is a collection for someone who truly appreciates the depth and detail of the material.

The design

The art of making an acetate frame, can seem so easy at times. Behind this special collection lies hours of perfecting the pressing and cutting process.

To obtain the 3D effect of the transition between the temple and the front, the acetate material must be cut very precisely so when you bend it, the upperside will still look smooth. The temple itself is a study in cutting and assembling the acetate layers correctly – best seen in the transparent acetate layer which is added last, but is still a seamless part of the entire temple.

The color combinations range from exclusive and classic to vibrant and dramatic! Some of these frames are not for the faint hearted!

MODEL 4663-4671

The design

This collection was inspired by the desire to create a high fashion, contemporary line of frames for the urbane, design-oriented man and woman.

Even though the shapes are obviously inspired by the past – you'll find the classic panto, the Jackie O-shape and the curvy Butterfly shape –, the collection remains fresh and relevant, because of the colors and the way the acetates layers are combined.

The design is "honest" with nothing to hide - you'll even notice the core wire as an extra detail once you take a closer look at the material. The finishing touch is the distinct end tip color that we have placed on the inside as a little surprise!

The design

This all-male 4th Dimension collection has a uniquely designed hinge, milled from a block of aluminium. This innovative solution adds an industrial feel to the urban, modern collection.

The aluminium material of the temple has been debossed to reduce weight and form a pattern, that expresses power and energy. The pattern is repeated in the acetate end tip, to obtain perfect balance in the frame.

The design

Soft, natural lines that complement the eyes. Inspired by nature's own patterns this collection resembles beautiful motifs of trees or a bird's nest. As each frame is drawn directly on a face, the lines of these intuitive patterns are repeated in the lines of the eyes, underlining the natural beauty. The exquisite tone-in-tone color scheme gives the frames a little unexpected twist, allowing them to be fashionable yet subtly elegant.

The design

This special Iris collection is a perfect mix of feminine and raw design. The undoubtedly feminine pattern of the temples is contrasted by the cool details in the rivets and in the raw metal finish, which is inspired by the Gothic arts.

The two different shapes are both larger than the usual Iris frame and the inspiration for one of them is really quite 70s retro – whereas the other is a sportier version with the cool double bridge.

The design

This beautiful Iris collection from ProDesign is a more classic predecessor of the successful 5129-31. The sharp line of the temple frame is repeated and this classic version of the temple pattern plays with the illusion of the empty space as a contrast to the rich, warm colors of the "jewels".

The jewel decoration of the temples is very symmetrical and intentional, and is inspired by the decoration of other female accessories, such as a necklace or an earring with precious stones.

Look closely at these frames and you'll find lots of leaves blossoming in the spring sun! The little leaf is really a simple decoration multiplied in different versions and colors. The different effects of the single detail are achieved with subtle variations of the same shape.

The shape of the leaf and the pattern in which the leaves are placed is repeated in the shape of the eye to underline the best facial features. The many colors and details of the leaf pattern on the temples seem like they are placed randomly, but are kept under control by the sharp outline.

MODEL 5133-5134 AND 5140-5141

The design

This collection is a true testament of how inspiration can come from almost anywhere. A bracelet in a shop in New York was the starting point for these striking Iris frames. The designer saw a bracelet made from a single flat sheet of gold, that was bent the shape of a bracelet.

It was an extremely delicate and time-consuming process to find the exact pattern of cut-outs that would both create a beautiful pattern on the outside of the frame temple, and also work, when the metal was bent and you could see the inside through the cut-outs.

The design of this frame was inspired by the desire to create something extravagant and feminine, exclusively for the modern and self-conscious woman. Each frame has been hand polished with great care, to bring out the depth and warmth in both the gold and the rhodium.

4321	5031	6031	9321	9631

MODEL 5135-5137

The design

The original inspiration came from a bracelet that were created from a mixture of perforation, flat sheet material and decorative stones, which all came together to create a beautiful feminine effect.

This new Iris series is a continuation of the popular 5129-32, but the pattern on the temples is much more random and casual whereas the first pattern of 5129-32 was very strict to create a dramatic graphical look. The two new temple designs are also more dynamic than in the previous series, with a really strong visual rhythm.

The design

Usually the Iris frames are ultra-feminine, with flowers and gems. But it doesn't necessarily have to be that way to be feminine! This Iris collection focuses on the mix of materials and the subtle play on colors.

The temples are created from an Italian acetate material that is unique for ProDesign. The stripes in the acetate are created specifically to mimic the rhythm of the design of the temples. All the temples are grey on the inside, but most of them have their own exterior layer, to give them a subtle pop of color.

The popular 5133-34 now with beautiful acetate fronts! A highly feminine collection for the woman who wants a bold and exclusive frame. We have used the amazing 3D temple design of the successful 5133-34 and created new color combinations with matching acetate fronts and end tips.

The new colors are fresh and spring-like, one with a tortoise acetate and even one with a matte black temple!

The layered acetate materials were chosen specially to match the new temple colors and the end tips were held in the same acetate colors as the fronts to emphasize the new boldness of this collection.

MODEL 6110-6117

The design

This simple, yet innovative collection from ProDesign has no hinge, but where the hinge would be, you'll see an "s". This "hinge" inspiration comes from the jewelry industry and by placing the "s" on the temple it becomes thinner and the temple bends where you expect it to.

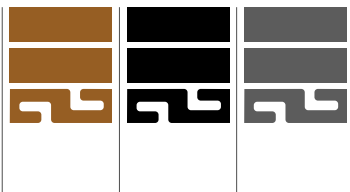

The temple material has been developed very carefully to be strong and flexible at the same time. Flexible temples require coloration that will not peel and ProDesign has used a new technology called PVD. It's a delicate and time-consuming process but the results are fully worth it.

The classic colors and shapes of this series underline the simple aesthetics that sets Axiom apart from the other ProDesign collections.

MODEL 6133-6135

The design

This slim Axiom collection is inspired by the award winning hinge functionality of the Zense collection 7342-45.

But this time we've turned the hinge inside out! The Axiom frames are all about no-nonsense simplified functionality, so whereas in the Zense collection, the hinge was cleverly hidden, it's now here for the world to see! The little screw that makes up the hinge, is actually a combined hinge and rim lock functionality!

To avoid any breakage due to the swivel mechanism, the hinge has a click-function that indicates, when you can't swivel the hinge any further. Once you've swiveled the hinge into place, it takes up no space at all.

MODEL 6501-6504

The design

Sometimes the frame design can be inspired by the material itself, as is the case with this amazing new Axiom collection from ProDesign. The fronts are made of the strong NXT material, which is in fact a sunglass lens material. The NXT is both strong and flexible enough to allow the lens to click into place.

The coloration of these frames makes them very special. The fact that the NXT is actually a lens material allows the light to pass through the fronts to obtain the fashionable transparent colors. Colors from the deep velvety purple to the high class crystal with the gold flash mirror effect, combined with beautiful metallic temples really make this collection stand out.

The temple material has been developed very carefully to be strong and flexible at the same time. Flexible temples require coloration that will not peel. ProDesign has used a new technology called PVD to prevent this. It's a delicate and time-consuming process but the results are fully worth it.

MODEL 7612-7615

The design

The new retro Zense collection is for the fashion forward crowd, who dare to be different and wear their frames with a humorous twinkle in the eye.

Inspired by designer eyewear of the past, we have created a series that is both classic and very modern. The smoky gradient colors of this collection have been inspired by the very best of the 50s, 60s and 70s. From the deep purple graded female frame to the funky panto inspired unisex model in a caramel havanna brown.

Most of the classic shapes are quite large, following the trend of large frames with a bit of a nerdy 70s look. The slim temples and the block hinge make the overall impression of the frames very streamlined and up-to-date.

THE DESIGNER

Gail Spence

The American born Danish jeweller and designer Gail Spence has a great love for tradition and skill in jewellery and metalwork. Her first eyewear design was the characteristic “No. One” reading glass frame which was produced in cooperation with ProDesign in the 80’s. “When I design, the basis for my creations is always myself and my own needs. I have an idea of what I want to create and then I work with the material until I feel the “power connection”. When this fusion occurs between my imagination and the metal, I know that the design is right.”

Gail Spence

MODEL 9301-9306

The design

This collection of frames with interchangeable temples comprises a unique hinge concept – maybe the most simplified hinge ever developed for an optical frame. The visible openings in the front where the temples fit perfectly do not only comprise a hinge, but also a delicate union between solid titanium and the transparent high-performance organic material.

The concept has just recently been expanded with ten new temple colors and two new front colors to list 38 different temples that are easily exchanged due to a simple “click off” – “click on” system. By designing a hinge that allows an easy exchange, the need to renew your look without having to have two frames is fulfilled in a very functional way.
